

Current & Upcoming
 Archive
 Applications
 Residency Blog
 About
 Contact

Algorithmic Improvisor: Performance Night

The Sydney algorithmic improviser hack-together will take place over 3 days in April and will bring together scientists, artists and other enthusiasts in pursuit of the creation of pieces of music-playing software that exhibit modest but noticeable forms of autonomy and musical capability when paired up with human improvising musicians. The hack-together will provide an opportunity to collaborate and explore technologies, techniques and critical issues of musical autonomy. The gathering will culminate in a performance on April 21st showcasing systems produced prior to and during the workshop. The performance will include the following musicians: Peter Hollo (cello), Adrian Lim-Klumpes (rhodes), Evan Dorian (drumkit), Ben Carey (saxophone) and Roger Dean (keyboard).

7:00PM —
 10:00PM
 Saturday,
 April 21 2012
 Cost: $7
 Tags:
 Performance,
 Residency

Serial Space is an artist-run gallery space in Sydney, Australia.

About | Contact | Mailing List | Facebook | Twitter | Flickr |
 Site by Pat Armstrong | Admin: Log in